Is the FCC and the NAB completely beholden to Clear Channel and infinity? How does the NAB even begin to rationally justify this type of attempted regulatory action. So much for the 'free' market, huh? I subscribe to both XM and Sirius - and I am extremely satisfied, which is not something I could ever say about corporate commercial radio. To the commissioners of the FCC, please send a clear message to the NAB that the federal government will not be a party to such a crude attempt to stifle the most exciting development in radio in many, many years. Thank you.
